Subadditive pressure

Balazs Barany

October 25, 2007

To compute the Hausdorff dimension of a dynamically defined fractal set we need to use the notion of pressure. I will give a brief introduction of it. We need a modification of the pressure which is called subadditive pressure when we work with nonconformal attractors. I will discuss some of the most important properties of the subadditive pressure.